EVENT

Reading Service for Writers

If you are a new writer, or a writer with a troublesome manuscript, EVENT's Reading Service for Writers may be just what you need.

Manuscripts will receive an assessment of 700-1000 words from EVENT's editors, focusing on such aspects of craft as voice, structure and point of view.

Eligible manuscripts include short fiction and creative non-fiction under 5,000 words, or up to eight pieces of poetry. The assessment should arrive in four to eight weeks.

EVENT's Reading Service for Writers costs $100 (cheque or international money order). You'll also receive a one-year subscription (or renewal) so you can check out EVENT's award-winning mix of writing.

What is EVENT?

EVENT, The Douglas College Review, is a celebrated literary magazine that champions new and established writers of fiction, poetry, non-fiction, notes on writing and reviews.

A literary institution in Canada, EVENT features both traditional narrative and contemporary approaches to poetry and prose. Our award-winning magazine has held up a mirror to our ever-changing cultural fabric for four decades.

EVENT is published three times a year. Each issue contains over a hundred pages of provocative, playful, intelligent — even profound — writing. We cast a wide editorial net, publishing both accessible and challenging work.

The vibrant, eclectic pages of EVENT are housed in an elegant wraparound cover showcasing the work of Canadian artists.

EVENT is home to Canada's longest-running Annual Non-Fiction Contest. Every winter we publish the three winning entries along with the judge's insightful essay on this vibrant and controversial literary genre.
